The Concordia University Varsity Women's Soccer team wrapped up its finest season in its five year history this past season finishing with a 3-3-2 overall record. The Stingers dropped a heartbreaking 1-0 defeat Sunday at the hands of the Champlain College Cougars of Lennoxville in the finals of the Concordia Invitational Women's Soccer Tournament. Champlain's Wendy Simons, selected as the tourney's Most Valuable Player, broke the goaltending dual between Concordia's Denise Bienvenu and Linda Lyon, with the game's only goal midway through the second half. The loss marked the second time Champlain defeated Concordia this season.

The Stingers avenged their only other loss on Saturday as they rallied to defeat the McGill Martlets 3-2 to advance to the tournament final. Sandy Mosel, Jackie Fefer and Sheilagh McGovern all scored single goals to pace Concordia's victory.

It was a very satisfying year for rookie coach Gerard McKee. McKee concentrated on fundamentals and conditioning with the female booters and the young squad displayed great improvement over the last month of the season. A pair of first-year players led Concordia in scoring. Jackie Fefer topped the list with five goals while another rookie, Erika Gagnon, was second with four. Veterans Karen Ungerson and Sandy Mosel collected three and two goals apiece while second year player Sheilagh McGovern had one goal.
